Powerful Performance

The sun's rays gently warm your skin as the cool southwest wind picks up and fills her sails. Gliding effortlessly across the water, her powerful hull moves you with emotion as well as toward your destination.

Equipped with some of the finest luxuries desired by any sailor, the Tartan 4600 offers an array of kingly commodities both on deck and down below. Whether its aboard the dual cockpit design, the bridge-deck or aft cockpit version, she is spacious, comfortable and easily manageable.

Suited for serious cruising by a crew or couple, her masthead rig (standard 59'6" or tall rig 65'5") and lines are all arranged for easy handling. Main halyard, reefs and main sheet are all led aft, and are conveniently tucked under a cabin top tunnel to avoid deck clutter. In addition, the electric main halyard winch, oversized sail handling winches, cockpit adjustable genoa lead and Harken Batslide mainsail system are just a few of the thoughtful touches available.

With either 1015 or 1170 square feet of total sail, she moves exceptionally well. Assisted by an optional roller furling 135% headsail and fully batten mainsail, she points well, tacks smoothly and accelerates nicely. However, should one roll the genny and drop the main into the lazy jack system, she hits from 7 to 9 knots under the power of a 62Hp diesel.

The shape of her hull depicts a vessel with authority and agility, easily propelled through the water regardless of the conditions. The balanced spade rudder and beavertail keel or keel/centerboard option provide the appropriate directional and lateral stability for control under all circumstances, while her steering ability is as responsive as a boat five feet shorter and several thousand pounds lighter.

The use of innovative materials and methods for construction fabricate strong, light and well-insulated hull and deck structures (Displacement 28,000 lbs.) Laminated from the highest grade NPG/Isothalic gel coat, vinylester and polyester resins and unidirectional "E" glass on a balsa core, she yields a high strength to weight ratio. Extensive framing, structural floor timbers and full structurally bonded bulkheads further maintain her hull rigidity, while allowing for greater load carrying ability.

Distinguished Elegance

As the sun sets over the horizon, you smile and breathe easy as you enjoy another evening anchored in the crisp water of Puget Sound. Cruising the blue waters around islands, you marvel at the thought of your days ahead. Being on the move has never been so relaxing.

Below deck, she is dramatic in layout, no matter which arrangement is chosen. Generous to all accommodations, the 4600 grants extra attention to the master and guest staterooms. Embracing all the comforts of a castle, each has a well proportioned berth, private head and finely hand crafted bureaus.

Her design spares no details. With all the modern conveniences of an everyday kitchen, including Corian counter tops, four burner gimbaled stove, oven and broiler, built-in microwave and optional mechanical freezer/refrigerator plus a multitude of cabinetry for stowage, her standard is beyond opulent. Strategically located, the nav station is designed to accommodate a full chart to plot your course, as well as house all your instrumentation and more.

Entering the main salon, the spacious interior creates a pleasing gathering place for entertaining, dining or relaxing. Built to best suit the styles of her owner, the setting area is the highlighted focal point, yet the built-in entertainment center with TV/VCR and stereo along with the liquor locker serve as the crowning jewels well deserved for a yacht of her caliber.

The flagship of the fleet, the T4600 is truly a boat specialized for its individual owner. Bountiful in performance, accommodations and pleasures Strength through craft & conviction.

The Tartan name has remained a strong and reputable brand for over 38 years primarily due to the product and design philosophy instilled by its founders. Now under the design leadership of renowned designer Tim Jackett, the entire Tartan line maintains its tradition of strong and well mannered performance yachts.

Crafted with the very best materials and processes, each Tartan employs sound construction and innovative accommodations that ensure comfort in all conditions.

Each component is well thought-out and hand built by skilled craftsmen leaving no detail overlooked; from the integrity of the hand laminated hull, the glassing of all structural timbers and bulkheads while in the mold, to fully finishing all cabinetry with backs and trim that are plugged and hand finished. All of these details are brought together into designs that share the graceful aesthetics and contemporary lines inherent to their predecessors and the Tartan name. Owning a Tartan is pride in ownership. The investment in quality affords a sense of security and confidence, and is easily offset by the exceptional value enjoyed later on.
